CIA Funds Went to Latin Leftists

NEW YORK.—An international and economic research organization headed by former Socialist Party leader Norman Thomas has received over $1 million from a foundation identified as a conduit for Central Intelligence Agency funds.

Activities of the organization, the Institute for International Labor Research (ILR), were financed almost totally from 1961 to 1963 by the J. M. Kaplan Fund of New York, which congressional investigators described in 1964 as a channel for agency money. The funds were not exhausted until last year, one of the research group said.

Money was used to establish, operate the Institute of Political Education (IPE) in Costa Rica, which has trained many Latin American leaders in "democratic leftism"; a research institution in the Dominican Republic under the regime of reformist President Juan Bosch, who was ousted in a rightist coup in 1963; and a publishing firm in Mexico City.

Mr. Thomas, who was chairman of the now-defunct New York research group, said he had been unaware of the CIA's role in financing these operations.

"I acknowledge my own stupidity," he said. "It was my business to know, but I didn't."

Mr. Thomas's organization received $1,043,840 from the Kaplan Fund from January, 1961, to September, 1963. This sum represented all but about $25,000 of the total funds received in that period.

The New York institute was formed largely under the guidance of Sacha Volman, a Romanian-born U.S. citizen who had been working for Radio Free Europe (RFE), widely reported to be subsidized by CIA. He interested Mr. Thomas in the idea as a means of fostering anti-Communist democratic activity in Latin America.

ASKED FOR FUNDS

Incorporated in February, 1957, the organization at first had little money with which to operate. In 1961 Mr. Thomas asked Jacob M. Kaplan, philanthropist and former president of the Welch Grape Juice Co., for a contribution from the fund he had founded.

The fund provided an initial sum of $35,000 in January, 1961. It made 16 subsequent payments. The last, in September, 1963, amounted to $160,000.

From 1961 to 1964, Thomas' New York-based institute contributed $258,000 to the Institute of Political Education in Costa Rica, whose policies were controlled by 17 Latin American left-of-center political parties. Bosch was one of the instructors in the institute, which taught democratic leadership techniques. The most influential institute leader was former Costa Rican president Jose Figueres.

In 1964, the Kaplan Fund cut off its subsidies to the Costa Rican center with the explanation that its operation by political parties might have jeopardized the fund's tax-exempt status.

OFTEN OPPOSED

Mr. Thomas pointed out that his New York group had often opposed U.S. government policy. After the U.S. military intervention in the Dominican Republic in 1965, it distributed a publication severely condemning this action.

"No foundations," he said, "and certainly not the CIA, ever gave any suggestions as to what we should do or not do."
